SOCIETY WOMEN TO RAISE ANIMALS FOR WINTER FURS

Special to The Washington Herald.
Edmonton, Alberta, April 12.—Several titled society women of London and their parts of England, attracted by the high prices paid for black fox pelts, are coming to Edmonton this spring to engage in fox-breeding in central and northern Alberta. They are prepared to make large investments. If the venture is successful, it is likely that women, who have hitherto devoted their attention to prize dogs and horses, will engage in the new industry.

Eight black fox skins, each valued at $1,500, were sold in Edmonton last week by trappers from the North country. Fifty-four thousand dollars' worth of silver fox pelts were sold last season. Factors of the Hudson's Bay, Revillon Freres and the Northwest Trading Company, which maintain posts in the North country, report that fur-bearing animals are plentiful, but there is no indication that prices for black and silver fox pelts will be lower.

The Austrian War Department has ordered ten machines invented by one of its officers, with which it will be possible for twenty-three workmen to manufacture 1,500,000 rifle cartridges a day.

FLOWER IS NAMED FOR MISS WILSON

"Nelrose" Bloom Is Deep Pink and a Feature of New York Exhibit.

New York, April 12.—Unless Miss Eleanor Wilson, daughter of the President, sees the new snapdragon which has been named for her, she may not feel altogether pleased with this floral tribute from one exhibitor in the Grand Central Palace Flower Show. The word snapdragon does not appeal to the feminine mind, but the color of this highly cultivated old-fashioned garden bloom is delicate and beautiful.

The "Nelrose" snapdragon was originated by F. W. Fletcher & Co., of Auburndale, Mass. The specimen exhibited by them in the international flower show was a blue ribbon, which is another reason why Miss Wilson may favor the new bloom.

Its spikes are large and perfectly shaped and are tinted a deep pink which is more like a strawberry sundae than anything else. The shade of pink is a trifle deeper than the one introduced under this name in silk materials, but the two are as close as art and nature come.

McMILLIN MAY GET POST TO PHILIPPINES

Tennessee Is Being Considered for Governor Generalship of Islands, Succeeding Cameron Forbes.

It is understood that President Wilson is now considering former Gov. Benton McMILLIN of Tennessee for the Governor Generalship of the Philippines to succeed Cameron Forbes, of Boston, who is now in this country on leave.

The entire Tennessee delegation in Congress has urged President Wilson to appoint Mr. McMILLIN Ambassador to Mexico. Mr. Bryan is known to have looked upon the suggestion with favor because of the high opinion he formed of the Tennesseean when they were colleagues upon the Ways and Means Committee of the House.

The President is said to have turned recently to Mr. McMILLIN as a possibility for the head of the Philippines government, for the reason that he believed the Tennesseean's executive experience in two terms as Governor had equipped him for the duties of the insular position.

Another man whom the President is considering for the Governor Generalship is Joseph E. Davies, of Wisconsin, who was secretary of the Democratic National Committee. The position pays $20,000 annually.

Picturesque Woman Will Tell of Legislative Work

Miss Frances Perkins, Who Lectures Today, Is an Interesting Figure Among Those Who Seek to Secure Better Conditions for Women in Shop and Factory.

Miss Frances Perkins, who is to address the second annual meeting of the Consumers' League at Rauchers this afternoon, is a picturesque and interesting character among the social workers of the day. Just about a year ago she gained fame by defeating the opponents of the measure introduced into the New York Legislature limiting the working hours of women to fifty-four a week.

The story of how this woman, single-handed, got her bill passed in the last few minutes of the session was told by Le Roy Scott in a magazine article last summer. It reads like an exciting chapter in a novel instead of its being the experience of a woman.

For two seasons Frances Perkins haunted the capitol at Albany in the interests of the McManus bill, limiting the working hours of all females and all males under eighteen employed in factories to fifty-four a week. Her two special friends in the Legislature were "The" McManus, "devil's deputy from Hell's Kitchen"—or so considered by most reformers—and "Big Tim" Sullivan, King of the Bowery. These two politicians, looked at askance by more "respectable" legislators, proved staunch friends to the working girl.

Bill Was Opposed.
As the session drew to a close, the enemies of the bill threw every kind of a barrier in its way. They knew the indomitable young secretary of the New York Consumers' League had twenty-six friends in the Senate, which was just enough to pass it. They tried lengthily amendments, but friends of the bill voted them down. Senator Allen of Troy made an impassioned speech in behalf of the machine and the factory. He told what a fine sight the Troy factories were, and how easy and pleasant the work in them.

Frances Perkins, standing behind the rail, was bursting to tell in response how low the wages were in those beautiful factories; how, because of the low wages, Troy had become a "woman's town."

But she did not need to, for a friend of the measure was there who was empowered to speak. Big Tim Sullivan rose to his feet, looking particularly innocent.

"Mr. President," said he, "I wish to endorse everything my honored friend, the Senator from Troy, has just said. I've seen the shirt factories of Troy, and I want to tell you all that they are a fine sight. And I want to tell you that it's a fine sight, too, to see the women and girls working in those bright, airy places the Senator has so eloquently described. But I also want to tell you," he concluded blandly, "that it's a far finer sight at nighttime to see the fine, big, upstanding men fetching around the women's dinner pails!"

It was a home thrust; the Senate reared, the opposition collapsed, and the bill passed by a wide margin.

Another Victory Won.
Upon the occasion of the consideration of another measure Miss Perkins saw defeat staring her in the face. There was one thing only to be done.

She seized Senator McManus's arm. "Move to reconsider," she cried, and flew for the telephone to call the two Sullivan who had departed in the belief that they were not needed at the same time dispatching a page to rush a taxi to the dock.

By a miracle she got in connection with them before the boat left. They came running back into the Senate chamber in time to be recorded in the affirmative. Three minutes before the session closed the long fight was won, and Frances Perkins was not the only person in the room whose tail nerves were relieved by tears.

The Senators crowded around to congratulate her.

"Well," cried Big Tim, friend of the working woman, "Miss Perkins, if I wasn't already in favor of woman suffrage, the job you've done here would have won me over."

Miss Perkins will talk this afternoon on the general aspects of legislative protection for working women. The meeting will be at 4:30. Admission is free.

LECTURE ON PHILOSOPHY.

Descartes and Spinoza Discussed by the Secular League.

An address on "Descartes and Spinoza" was delivered by former Representative E. V. Brookshire before the Secular League, at its meeting at Pythian Temple yesterday afternoon, and the subject was discussed following the address by President Hyland C. Kirk, W. H. Coleman, Dr. J. J. Shirley, David Eccles, Secretary John D. Bradley, A. W. Thomas, George Warren, Donald Macpherson, and others.

Mr. Brookshire held that upon the essentials of philosophy Descartes and Spinoza were in agreement, and he especially emphasized their work as representatives and pioneers of the psychological method of thought and knowledge as opposed to "the theological method," the first "resting solely on the consciousness each man has of the operations of his own mind," and the second "on authority, ancient records, traditions, and the voice of antiquity."

Preceding the address an original poem on Descartes and Spinoza, entitled "The Seekers," was read by President H. C. Kirk.

As a prelude, Mrs. Orton read a poem on marriage and divorce.

It was announced that at its meeting next Sunday the League would be addressed by Charles F. Nesbit on "Heresy in History."

FEDERATION ENTERTAINED.

District Women's Clubs Hear Phonograph Concert.

The District Federation of Women's Clubs was entertained in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on Friday at a demonstration of the improved Edison phonograph.

Mrs. Ida Maud Haen, representative of Thomas A. Edison, personally conducted the demonstration and was the recipient of a vote of thanks from the ladies.

An elaborate musical programme was rendered, and this was followed by a brief explanation of the discovery and development of the phonograph. The feature of the improved phonograph is the use of a diamond-pointed contact pin, which obviates the necessity of changing the pin with every new disc, the diamond pin being practically indestructible.

Repeatedly interrupting the current for infinitesimal fractions of time, permitting the diamond to cool, but not interfering with the light as perceived by the human eye, a French electrician has invented a lamp which he claims uses but one two-hundredths of the current of ordinary lamps.
